Village Committee give-away

Businesses sponsor Bonus Month

Carmel Valley will be the scene of a series of give-aways during the months of August, September, October and November, according to Ken Van Hagen and Don McKenzie, co-chairmen of the Village Committee.

During each "Carmel Valley Village Bonus Month," a prize will be given away at the end of the month and the gift will increase in value with each succeeding month.

One ticket will be given free with each purchase of one dollar or more and only participating businesses will have the tickets available. Winners need not be present to win and only persons 18 years and over will be eligible for tickets.

The prize for the month of August will be an Eastman Kodak Instamatic M-4 movie camera and its matching M-50 movie projector.

The camera and projector will be on display during the month in the shops of the participating businesses. Those who will have the give-away tickets available are all members of the Village Committee.

These are: Village Liquors, Swan Furniture, Talbott, Inc., The Pampered Hamper, The New Village Cafe, Carmel Valley Market, The Village House, Grace Maher Fashions, Mary Clark Confections, Henriette Interiors, Monterey Pottery, Plaza Linda Restaurant, Joanne's Sportswear, The Grapevine, Bower's Pharmacy, Village Market, Carmel Valley Bootery, White Oaks Theatre, McCreery and Allaire, Hank's Flying A Station, The General Store, The Outlook, C.V. Music Shop, Town and Country Real Estate, Irene Baldwin Real Estate, and Blue Sky Lodge.

Make a note of emergency phone

Residents of Carmel Valley should have the emergency phone number posted in a conspicuous place, in case of fire, car accident or injury. The same number - 659-2221 - summons either the Red Cross ambulance and first aid crew or the fire department.

Several times recently we have heard of new residents who were confused by the listing in the directory and called the Highway Patrol before calling the Valley First Aid, thereby losing valuable time in treating accident victims.

Remember the emergency phone...659-2221. Call it first!

Bob Cummings will arrive at Valley airstrip for preview

Bob Cummings, one of the stars of the movie "Stagecoach," which will open the new Valley Cinema, will fly into Carmel Valley in his private plane for the preview party, August 31. In addition, Cummings has offered to take guests to the preview up for a ride over the Valley.

Cummings is the first star to accept the invitation to attend the champagne preview being sponsored by the Carmel Valley Community Center Board.

Tickets for the gala champagne preview party are $7.50, all of which is tax-deductible, Bob Jones, president of the Community Center Board, told the Outlook. They will soon be available from board members and in various locations throughout the Peninsula. The box offices at the Hill and Steinbeck Theatres will also handle tickets for the benefit.

LOVELY CANDY KNAPP, of Carmel Valley, urges everyone to "Come to the Fair!" and view its theme of "Fun with Fashions and Flowers Around the World." This year's Monterey County Fair is two weeks earlier than usual and will open on Wednesday, August 10, with the traditional Pancake Breakfast at 8 a.m. The Fairgrounds will be open from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. each day with the National Horse Show performances at 1:30 and 7:45 p.m. See pages 10-11 for picture story.

Beards are spouting for the Fiesta de Los Amigos

Fiesta enthusiasm is growing -- visibly! -- on the cheeks and chins of Carmel Valley men as they enter into the spirit of the Fiesta de Los Amigos planned for September 24. The day-long fun and festivities will begin with a noon parade that will lead guests up to historic Holman's Guest Ranch where there will be entertainment and refreshments for children, while adults tour the beautiful Spanish ranch and enjoy a program of Fiesta highlights there. A grand Ball, "El Baile Escondido," will climax the Fiesta in the evening.

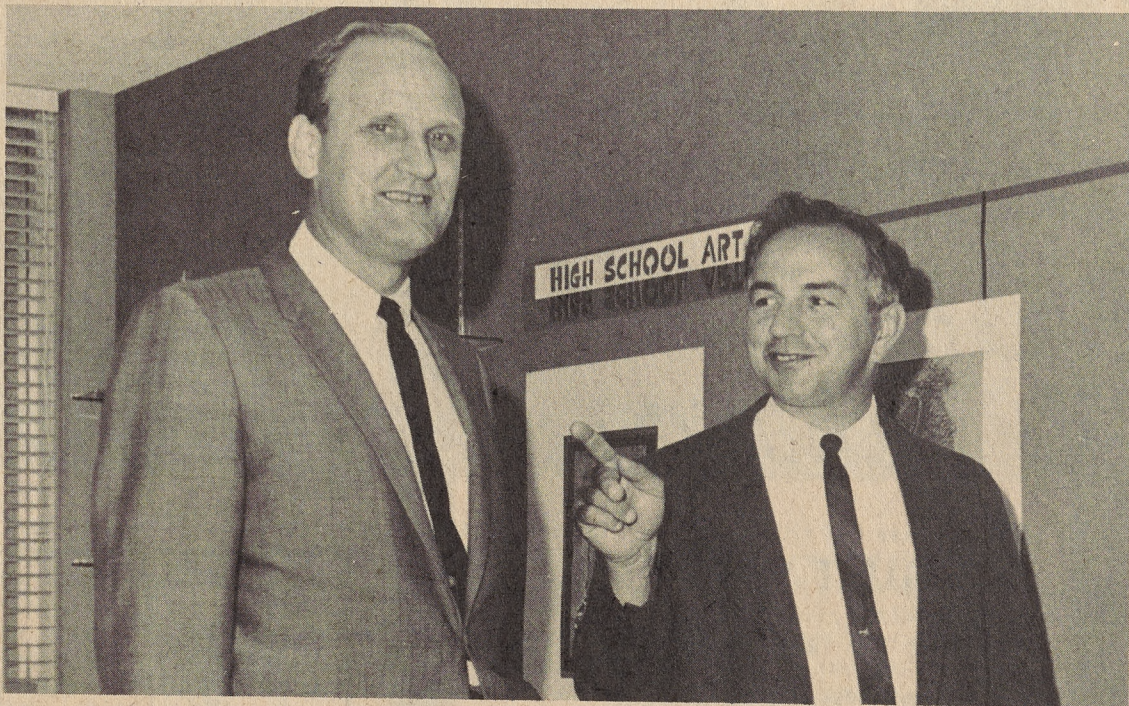

But in the meantime, Valley men are getting in the mood by growing beards to match the occasion. There will be a prize for the finest beard, made up of the 50 cents contributed by contestants to the pot. Experts who will judge the hairiest work of art are Marlinde von Ruhs and Al Parker, two of the Valley's favorite artists.

Already off to a running start with a lovely crop of fuzz are Morden Buck, Don Laird, Chip Collins, and two prospectors who let their razors have a rest on their vacation in gold panning country, Don Cummings and Don Weber. Entrants in the beard growing contest are leaving their four bits with Don McKenzie at the Grapevine, or with Nick Skalyo at the Village Liquors.

Plans for the Fiesta de Los Amigos are well formed already by a staff of committee heads under Mrs. Richard Dick, Fiesta chairman, who is also Ways and Means chairman for the Carmel Valley Women's Club, the Fiesta's sponsoring organization. Proceeds from the day's fund raising features will go entirely to the Valley's youth activities, including Little

Editorial

Where will the room tax go?

As this week's edition hits the newstands, there has just been another meeting in Salinas regarding the Chamber of Commerce advertising budget. We don't know at this time what the outcome was from this session. One thing we do feel is that, if our motel and hotel owners do not get some fair percentage of the room tax back into their unincorporated areas, they are being subjected to discrimination.

Should an area be penalized for not being incorporated? If we were a city, the taxes collected within our limits would automatically come back to us to be used to enhance the area.

It would seem that if a motel tax is collected (and it is a matter of record how much comes from where), then some benefit should be reaped by the contributing area. . . it should not just be lumped into the County General Fund. . . just because we are not a city.

Carmel Valley resorts are now estimated to be funneling about $16,000 a year from the motel tax into county coffers. It is logical for the local community to receive a fair share of this money back for development and promotion of recreation facilities.

School Board to adopt 1966-67 budget tonight

The employment of a business manager for the Carmel Unified School District will be an important matter on tonight's agenda of the school board. Meeting at 7:30 in Brey Hall at the High School, the Board will welcome Dr. Harris Taylor, the district's new superintendent, to his first meeting.

Dr. Taylor has recommended the hiring of a competent business manager for the district. There is a great need for someone who knows what the problems are in the maintenance and service ends of the business and can effectively budget the monies to give the most good in areas outside of instruction, he feels.

A final public hearing on the 1966-67 budget will be held tonight, culminating in the adoption of the final budget, according to the order of business.

The next regular meeting will be held on September 14 and 28, after the beginning of school.

C of C clarifies zoning policy

Carmel Valley Chamber of Commerce is opposed to indiscriminate zoning, President Tom Hefling emphasized in response to last week's Outlook editorial.

"The majority of Chamber members are home-owners here and like other people appreciate the importance of maintaining the Valley's premium quality as a place to live," he said. "As a result, we also favor discriminate zoning judgments by authorities in charge."

Hefling pointed out that last week's Chamber directors' approval of the proposed Rancho del Monte condominium was qualified by the motion's phrase: "within the scope of the idea so far presented."

Adding that the Chamber is happy to accept the experienced judgement of the governmental bodies whose job it is to weigh proposals, he said that he felt the editorial did not convey "the thoughtful feeling at the Chamber directors meeting. We try to produce as thoughtful answers to problems as time permits. In this particular case an overly-full agenda resulted in only a limited time for questions."

The Chamber of Commerce president said that the presentation included the facts that fewer condominium units were proposed than possible motel units under a use permit, and that a porosity test indicated satisfactory sanitary conditions.

Preview party

The list of stars which take part in the production of Stagecoach is impressive. Among them are Ann-Margaret, a dancehall hostess; Red Buttons as the whiskey salesman; Michael Conners as the card shark; Bing Crosby as the alcoholic doctor; Bob Cummings as the embezzler; Van Heflin as the marshall; Slim Pickens as the stage driver; Stephanie Powers as the expectant mother and Keenan Wynn as the killer.

All proceeds from the benefit preview will go to the Carmel Valley Community Center. The Preview will be held the evening before the official opening of the theatre on August 31.

Correction!

In a recent accident report, it was erroneously stated that Milton Williams had been injured. The first aid crew was called to assist Milton's father, Oliver J. Williams, who lives with him.

Hacienda Carmel residents celebrate 4th anniversary with gala party

Hacienda Carmel celebrated its fourth anniversary on Monday evening when residents gathered in Casa Fiesta for an evening of food, fun and dancing. For the first time, nearly all of the units were represented, since most of the apartments are now owner-occupied.

The sumptuous main buffet was provided by Hacienda's general manager, L.H. Miller and his staff. However, there was an additional hors d'oeuvre table which was laden with favorite foods contributed by the residents.

The evening's entertainment was topped off with dancing to the music of Neil Armstrong's Combo with Julie Robertson and Jaye.

Mrs. Harold Sutcliffe, chairman, and Mrs. William Rice, vice chairman of the Anniversary Party committee, were aided by many others in making this affair the most successful one to date. Mrs. Paul Heath, activities chairman of Hacienda and her vice chairmen, Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Amen, aided in planning the party evening.

The one in the middle can do things other cars wouldn't dare do.

You're looking at three very good cars. Judge them in terms of sheer popularity at the moment, and the little car on the left would surely win the loving cup. As for the car on the right, it has done an outstanding job showing the world the Swedes know how to make outstanding cars.

Which brings us to the car in the middle. Its name is SAAB. It's from Sweden. And it can do things other cars wouldn't dare do. Every challenge and every hazard a hard-nosed racing driver can dream up, the SAAB can handle with ease.

This car will hold onto the road for dear life. (Your dear life.) It has front-wheel drive, to keep you from skidding on curves, on hills, on ice, in rain, in snow. And it has true aerodynamic design, so that the faster it goes, the tighter it hugs the road.

All these safety features are standard in SAAB: Roll-bar construction. Collapsible steering wheel and column. "Pop-out" windshield. Seat harnesses. Padded dash and visors. Safety door latches. Flashing warning lamps. Three separate braking systems.

SAAB has a bigger built-in safety margin than the average driver will ever need.

That's exactly the safety margin the average driver should always have.

Even when it's winning the hair-raising Monte Carlo Rally, the SAAB is safe to be in. Even in rush-hour city traffic, the SAAB is fun to drive in.

Now that you have a better idea of what the car in the middle can do, you may wonder why we bother showing it with those other two cars above. It's simply because car-buyers are people and people love to make comparisons. And that suits us fine.

Beard contest ideas

The Fiesta de Los Amigos planned for September 24 will especially commemorate the old Spanish days in Carmel Valley, from the first Franciscan Padre who explored it from Carmel Mission in the 1770's, to the invasion of "Gringos" in the Gold Rush days of the 1840's.

Today's male residents are entering a Fiesta Beard Growing Contest with a fifty cent entry fee to go into a pot to make up the prize. Here are ideas for beard growers, or take an inspiration from the early American sailors who jumped ship and settled here.

The late Joe Mora is well remembered by old-timers as one of Carmel's favorite artists and creator of the murals in Kip's Market, as well as Father Serra's sarcophagus in the Mission.

Converted ambulance becomes summer home for CV visitors

By Jean Graham

My first acquaintance with "Rosinante" or "Rosie" as she is fondly called by her owner, was at midnight of July 25th when a neighbor's excited voice came over the telephone and asked, "Are you expecting guests from Connecticut and are they in an ambulance?" My answer, sleepily, was "Yes" to both questions. "Well, I'm really sorry, but as I've been bothered by 'peeping Toms' of late, I have already called the Sheriff and I guess they are over on your property by now."

Such was the welcome to Carmel Valley to Wynn Betts and Don Moore who traveled across the country from my home town of Darien, Connecticut, in the Darien Police ambulance, circa 1950, which Wynn bought last Spring for $150. After the deputies were convinced that the boys were visiting the Grahams in La Rancheria, they took off and the boys went back to sleep again.

Wynn and Don started out from Connecticut with $500 between them three weeks ago, and after stopping in Vermont to visit Don's parents, they crossed Lake Champlain on the old-fashioned roofless ferry into New York State and thence across Illinois, the middle plain states and stopped in Utah at Great Salt Lake.

They commented that all across the country, people were kind and offered them meals and their property to park the ambulance on during the night. Their first run-in with the law was in Carmel Valley.

FAITHFUL ROSINANTE

"Rosinante," incidentally, was the name of Don Quixote's horse, and this "Rosy," as the boys call her, was a true and faithful servant through the trip.

She was equipped with a Citizens Band Radio which enabled the boys to talk to other motorists or citizens in a radius of 150 miles. This way they could radio ahead to find out where they could park for the coming night. Two converters, one of which converted 12 volt electric current from the regular car battery into 110 volts, powered the radio, electric clock, record player, small portable TV set, electric iron, heater and radio!

Along the rear wall of the driver's seat, the boys had built utility cabinets, one for clothing, one for kitchen utensils and dishes. A shelf above the stove was decorated with real, live philodendron vine, tended carefully through the trek. There is a refrigerator (really an ice-box) which the boys filled daily with ice, a sink, in which the dishes were placed each morning, with soap and water, and the motion of the ambulance throughout the day did the work! Laundry was sometimes done in this same manner! Their food mostly consisted of cereal, canned soups, beans, and they supplemented this with daily fresh supplies of milk, hamburgers and bread.

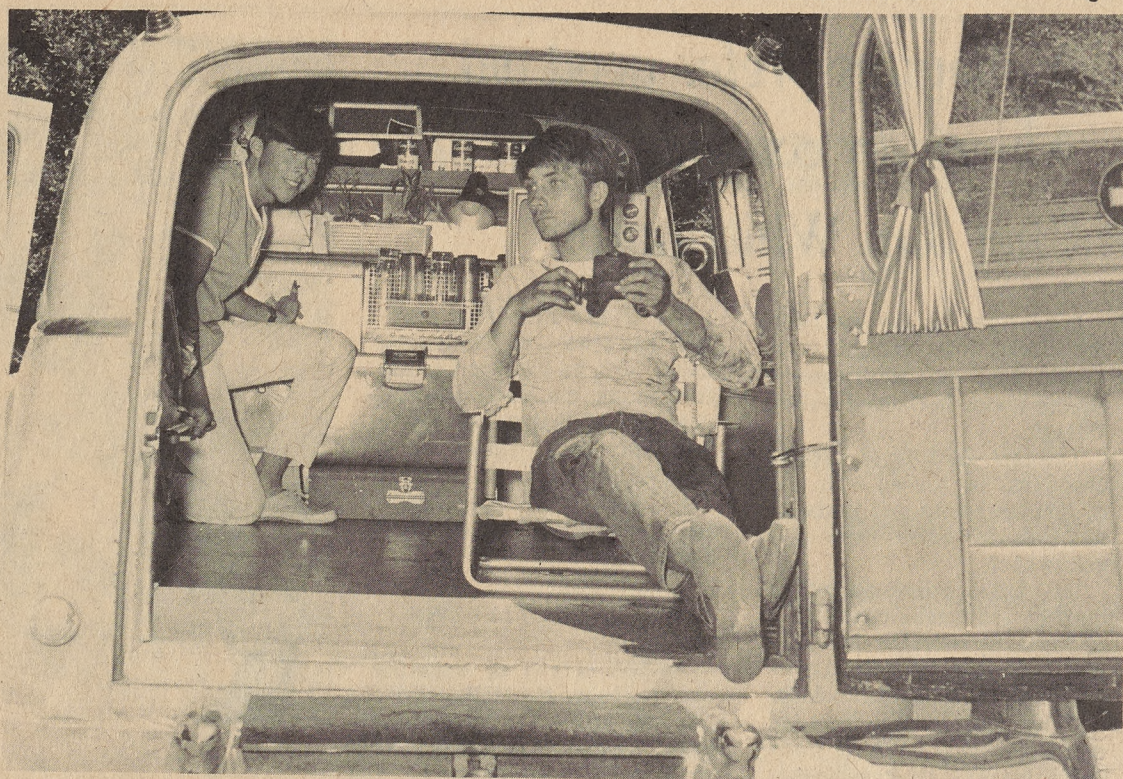

SHE ATE WELL TOO!

The one problem they had was weight. Rosie weighs over three tons, and they only got 14 miles per gallon! By the time they reached here, they had spent $200 on gasoline.

Looking back over the trip so far, they said they were going to continue it on their own, working to earn money if any tires blow out or other trouble arises. In Reno, they had a bit of luck. Wynn said he would watch people playing the slot machines and found the "wins" followed a definite pattern. He said, usually after six or seven straight loses, by other people, he would move in and play two quarters, then stop, and three out of four times he won! But don't try it!

When they left Carmel Valley Saturday, they were kidding me about "sunny California." How could I convince them it hadn't rained during the summer here in 70 years?

DON MOORE AND WYNN BETTS REVEL IN LUXURY in their converted ambulance. Jean Graham, their Valley hostess, once rode in it as an accident victim in Connecticut.

'Valleyites prefer good old American cooking' says Chef Jim Whittington Impressive is the word for the credentials of Chef Jim Whittington of Whittington's Dining Room in Carmel Valley Village.

The list is long of famous chefs that he served with, and of famous hotels and restaurants where he has been executive chef.

But, after being skilled in the rich and magnificent school of foods, he revealed that Carmel Valleyites in general prefer good old American cooking.

"The trend is away from too much rich food, with so many people being weight-conscious," Chef Whittington explained. "They don't take time to dine; it's eat and run these days."

But if it's something gourmet that's wanted, Whittington knows how, as the membership plaques on the wall indicate. They reveal that he belongs to the Chefs de Cuisine Association of California, to the Pacific Coast Chefs' Association and to the American Culinary Federation.

CHEF ABOARD LURLINE

He has served as executive chef on board the Matson liner Lurline, at the St. Catherine's Hotel on Catalina Island, the Arizona Biltmore, Phoenix.

In the San Francisco area he was executive chef at the Benjamin Franklin Hotel, San Mateo; at the Downtown Club and the Women's City Club in San Francisco itself. He opened the Mapes Hotel, Reno, and served as chef at Tahoe Tavern, and in Honolulu at Paul's Steak House.

In the Northern part of California, he was chef at Mt. Shasta Ski Bowl, at the old Shasta Springs Resort and at Seigler Hot Springs in Lake county.

In Carmel Valley, he was chef for a year at Carmel Valley Inn and in Monterey at the Mark Thomas Inn.

Before opening his Dining Room in the Village, he operated the Retreat Cafe in Pacific Grove.

JIM & THORA WHITTINGTON

AT CAMP STONEMAN

During World War II, he headed all the food departments of the PX's and commissaries at Camp Stoneman, near Pittsburg, California.

A native of Arkansas, Whittington moved on to greater opportunity when a youth, and apprenticed under a series of top chefs in St. Louis. These included Otto Kouffler at Hotel Jefferson, Max Weber at the Buckingham Club, Jack White at the Charles Hotel, and Louie Burilleo with the Fred Harvey System.

Assisting Chef Whittington is his pleasant wife, Thora. A native of Utah, she was working for a Hollywood restaurant when she met Jim, who was a chef at the Selznick movie studio.

They have a daughter, Julie, who will be a high school senior next year.

"We are fortunate in working as a team, trying to give the people the best service and food we can," Chef Whittington added.

Drive for Center funds continues

The Community Center is a non-profit organization, and maintains both the building and grounds for use by the residents of Carmel Valley. The completion of the bath house adjacent to the swimming pool marked the culmination of the Spring's project.

Rain in July didn't dampen AFA Studio tour

IN SPITE OF THE STARTLING EVENT of rain in July, over 1000 persons visited the eighteen studios which were opened to the public during Saturday's annual American Federation of Arts Artist's Studio Tour. AT LEFT - The lovely garden of the Joseph Danysh home on Camino Real was the setting for refreshments midpoint during the tour. Viewed through the archway, the Spanish influence is apparent, and is accented in the house with paintings by Paco Ferro and color and charm of Mexican accessories. ABOVE - Portraits in varying stages of completion filled the studio of Linford Donovan when visitors arrived during the tour. Mrs. William Hawley (left) and Kay Larsen of San Francisco (seated) stopped to view the working area of this well-known painter's studio on the Mesa in Carmel.

As administrator, Mr. Gordon is a member of the Governor's cabinet and heads an agency comprised of eleven departments, Divisions and commissions.

This important meeting is being sponsored by the Carmel Board of Realtors. According to its President, George Conn, the luncheon will be held at LaPlaya Hotel, Carmel, at noon on Thursday. Reservations may be made through the individual local Boards of the Tenth District.

Art Show hosts 1,200 visitors

The Religious Art Show, held at Fellowship Hall of the Church of the Wayfarer during the week of the Bach Festival, played host to over 1,200 visitors.

The first place popular award in painting was given to Jack Swanson of Carmel Valley for his oil entitled "Crucifixion." Runner-up was Katherine Aurner of Carmel with an acrylic "Madonna." Djorde Kostic's religious motif table, made of straw and mosaic, received an overwhelming majority of votes and was given a special award ribbon as best of show by popular vote.

The first place award in sculpture was given to a wood carving, "Moses," by T.O. Edwards of Carmel Highlands. Runner-up was "Gaspar, Balthazar and Melchior," a wood sculpture of three figures by Monterey artist, Nick Guastella.

First place in crafts was a composite by Doney Dalmer Knight of Carmel, entitled "St. Francis of Assisi." Runner-up was a straw mosaic painting of Jesus, entitled "Life," by popular award winner, Djorde Kostic of The Dalles, Oregon.

Woman's Club plans summer picnic

An old-fashioned picnic, spread on tree-shaded tables in Pacific Grove's George Washington Park, will be enjoyed by members and guests of the Carmel Woman's Club at 12:30 p.m. on August 11.

Those attending will bring their own picnic baskets, including table service; coffee and tea will be provided by the Hospitality Committee of the Club. The facilities of George Washington Park (Sinex Avenue at Alder Street and 17 Mile Drive) have been reserved for the use of the Club on that date. Following the picnic luncheon, a program of games will be the order of the day, in true picnic style.

Members are asked to make reservations prior to August 5, with members of the reservations committee, Mrs. L. F. Bosshardt, chairman (624-8146).

Arts Council approves use of Sunset for music academy

The Arts Coordinating Council of Monterey County met at White Oaks Theatre in Carmel Valley last week under the direction of Leonard Klene, president.

The group, composed of delegates from member organizations, voted unanimous approval of the proposal to use Sunset Center for the development of a significant West Coast music academy. This move had been recommended to the Sunset Commission by Mrs. W. E. van Loben Sels. The group will study the proposal further.

Barbara Cook, of White Oaks

Theatre, was elected to a three-year term on the nominating committee, with architect Joseph Wythe named for a two-year term and Fritz Wurzmann, representing the Carmel Music Society, elected to a one-year term of service.

It was also announced by Mrs. John Beahan, of the Peninsula Choral Society, that the Arts Council will maintain a booth at the Monterey County Fair from August 10-14.

Garden Thoughts

of THE OLEANDER GARDEN SHOP

A coast rewood tree attained a height of 364 feet, other trees like the sequoia, Douglas fir, and blue gum eucalyptus of Australia exceed 300 feet in height. These trees pump millions and millions of gallons of water to these lofty heights to keep their leaves green and fresh. How do they do it? Even if you know all the theories behind this colossal movement of water, it is still amazing. Sometimes streams and springs near forest trees will go dry, and when the trees are cut, the water returns, showing how great an amount of water these plants use.

For us, watering is still very important at this time. Spring-flowering trees will not produce flowers in profusion if they suffer at this time from lack of moisture around their root systems. Water is lost to the atmosphere mostly through pores on the leaves. The tomato leaf has 780 pores per square inch on its upper surface and 84,500 on its lower surface. These "stomata" (pores) can regulate the rate of evaporation (transpiration) from plants to a certain extent by opening and closing or decreasing the size of the opening. The frequently-asked question, "how much water shall I give this plant?" cannot be given a definite answer. There are factors which affect the absorption of water, such as: 1) solar radiation, 2) humidity, 3) temperature, and 4) wind. Take two almost identical plants in pots, one placed in a protected spot and the other in a current of wind, and you will notice the latter will show wilting leaves way ahead of the other.

The Pfitzer cannas are in bloom now, as well as the other, older variety. The Pfitzers are stocky plants about three feet high, and carry a bouquet of satiny flowers in clear, unusual shades. They need moist rich soil and a sunny, warm place. This variety does well in containers. You can plant them from dormant rhizomes in spring or from plants in bloom in containers now. A plant in a pot whose flowers are about to open can be brought inside the house near a sunny window. The flowers will open gradually and will last up to two weeks. The leaves look like a miniature banana tree, and give a tropical effect. Frost kills the top parts of the plants here in the Valley, but their rhizomes stay alive in the soil and new shoots come out when the soil warms up.

This time of the year your pansies may look leggy and stop blooming with the rise in temperature. When they are in this stage, pinch them back hard and mulch in between them. They will make new growth and a new cycle of bloom begins.

When iris become crowded, it is time to dig them up and divide their rhizomes (generally about every third year). Choose the best ones, cut the leaves back, and, if planting in a group, set them so the fans of leaves point toward the center. The little new "toes" on the rhizomes will then point toward the center of the clump. New growth will develop away from the toes, and this prevents later crowding in the center of an iris clump.

July is a good time to increase your stock of your favorite geraniums, pelargoniums, and marguerites. Dust the ends of the cuttings lightly with a rooting hormone such as root-one. Insert the cutting in a medium of one-half sand and one-half peat moss or in vermiculite. Keep the cuttings medium damp but not "soaking wet," and in a well-protected place from wind and direct sunlight. Always cut just under the point at which a leaf joins the stem. This is the best area for rooting. Keep one or two leaves on the cutting. If they are too large, you may trim the leaves to one-half to one-third of their size.

Protect your tomato plants by not smoking near them! They may contact the tobacco virus. It is a good policy to wash your hands before handling them if you are a smoker.

CV Garden Club potluck supper

The Carmel Valley Garden Association will hold a potluck supper in the gardens of Hazel and Bill Milbourn on Boronda Road at 4:00 p.m. August 14. Col. and Mrs. A. Friedenthal are chairmen of the social gathering. Be sure that you have confirmed your reservations by August 11 so that adequate seating may be arranged. If no one has contacted you, please phone them at 659-4334. Each person is asked to bring their own table service. Coffee, tea, or Sanka will be provided.

PRINCESS WINNIFRED (Linda Boblitt) is introduced by Prince Dauntless (Don Honeycutt) to his mute father King Sextimus (Ron Stark) in White Oaks Theatre's presentation of "Once Upon a Mattress." It is performed weekly on Thursday through Sunday evenings at 8:30.

Drama review:

British satire brings laughs at White Oaks

The comic revue, "Beyond the Fringe" which opened a series of Tuesday night performances at White Oaks Theatre, provided a number of laughs as it poked fun in a typical British way. Its audience appreciation will be somewhat limited, we feel, to those who enjoy the British humor, penned by Alan Bennett, Peter Cook, Jonathan Miller, Dudley Moore and Paxton Whitehead.

The program is made up of a group of thirty satirical skits, some not more than a few minutes long. There are a number which are excellent, some which could easily have been eliminated and the program shortened a bit.

In order to gain the most from the performance, it helps to be aware of current events and world situations. Both British and American politics are lampooned in quite a spontaneous manner, despite the obvious difficulties arriving from the fact that these seven young men are not British and don't have the same motivation as their English counterparts.

However, several of them have done an outstanding job of "turning" English and are very much at ease in their roles.

Michael Collins is exceptional in each of his skits.

He particularly looks the part as well as sounding it, and his monologue, "The English Way of Death," deserves special notice.

Ken Bachtold, who directed "Beyond the Fringe," as well as appearing in the revue, also puts on a performance well worthy of praise. His piano playing was just good enough and bad enough to be effective, and he has a most "expressive" deadpan.

Competant handling of Shakespeare at MPC

By CHRIS BORREGAARD

An evening of fun and fantasy is in store for future audiences, as the MPC Little Theater production of "Love's Labour's Lost" makes a notable contribution to the field of Shakespearian acting. The play, one of Shakespeare's earliest comedies, takes place in the mythical kingdom of Navarre, where King Ferdinand (Craig McLaren) and his gentlemen have resolved to make Navarre a little academy of learning. They enter into a compact for three years, under stiff penalty, to live a life of seclusion in which food and sleep are precisely regulated and woman's society is positively prohibited.

The only types of recreation are to be provided by the clown Costard (John Morgan) and a pompous, whimsical Spaniard, Don Adrino de Armado (Roderrick Sibley). But when it comes time to sign the agreement, Berowne (Dave Hunt) points out to the King and his other companions Longaville and Dumaine (Reade Wood and Sean Tracy, respectively) the necessity of breaking their vows because of the upcoming visit of the Princess of France (Layne Littlepage) and her ladies.

In the leading roles, Craig McLaren as the King and Layne Littlepage as the Princess of France, are excellent, their skill in handling the frequently heavy dialogue deserving of many laurels. A play surely designed to distinguish the artist from the amateur, Dave Hunt as Berowne was outstanding, performing his role with

The Rhyming Philosopher

As most of us know it wasn't too long ago
When Freedom included the folks who owned land,
And the total extent of the state government
Was taxes collected each year on demand.
You planted or plowed it, (the law still allowed it),
Erected a barn or a house where you pleased;
Made roads run beside it, or p'rhaps subdivide it --
No laws to be broken, no palms to be greased.
But now, though you own it, the law says we'll zone it,
They map you and wrap you all up in a knot.
The way that they tell it, you can't even sell it
To someone who wants to raise squabs on the lot.
And then, heaven bless you, the way they assess you,
So taxes pile up and the burden's no joke.
No planners consult you, so as a result you
Look forward to winding up totally broke.
I've got little patience for government agents
Increasing all over the country of late.
They've hands in your pocket, unless we can stop it
We'll soon have a communist-socialist state.

'Stop the World' opens at White Oaks on August 11

Staging of "Stop the World, I Want to Get Off" is underway at White Oaks Theatre in Carmel Valley in advance of next week's opening, August 11. Gale Peterson, who is artistic director for the theatre, is rehearsing the musical company headed by John O'Connell and Mary Pattie.

This is O'Connell's second summer with the group. He is presently a student at San Francisco State College

"Stop the World" will run Thursday through Sunday nights at 8:30 until September 4. Final performances of "Once Upon a Mattress" are being given this weekend. The two one-act farce operas by Bizet and Offenbach, scheduled to run throughout the summer, have been cancelled due to meager attendance.

'Beyond the Fringe' review

The opening scene between Bob Locke, Michael Riordan and Ron Stark, which takes place in the audience, is well done and sets the pace. Ron Stark's monologue in "Take a Pew," continues to establish him as a very talented character actor, especially since he is still but a teenager.

Bob Locke looks and talks the part of the snob and "well-born Englishman" in a number of skits.

Denny Flinn and Don Honeycutt have a bit more trouble bringing the English bit across, but they still show a great deal of talent.

This reviewer enjoys this kind of humor and welcomed the change. The degree of appreciation, we would suspect, would depend on whether one was familiar with the original, and whether the viewer got a kick out of lampooning in the British tradition. We enjoyed it, but it is not fare that everyone would like.

Under the Oaks and Among the Cacti

By Mildred Hattan

In complete agreement that the highlight of their month in Alaska was the beauty seen from ship to shore as the boats wend their way slowly through hundreds of islands, were Beth and Clyde Hitchcock who returned last week to their home on Merrill Way. Accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Tom Eymon, friends from Sacramento, the two couples drove to Prince Rupert and ferried from there to Skagway. Leaving their auto they traveled over the narrow gage railroad, built during the time of the gold rush to take supplies up the Yukon, across the mountains to White Horse.

Transferring to bus, the travelers journeyed 600 miles to Fairbanks where they entrained for a tour of McKinley Park. From Anchorage, they flew to Juneau, boarded a ferry and returned to their car.

Having heard of the beauty of the new British Columbia ferry that goes from Point Kel-sey to Prince Rupert, the two couples made their return trip this way.

While in the North, they enjoyed a meeting with Donna and Jack Barnhart and a party given by the Valleyites from Rancho Road to entertain many of their friends made during their six year residency in Fairbanks. They also enjoyed a visit with former Valleyites, Mr. and Mrs. Curtice Dean who own the Wagon Wheel Camp Grounds, and in Vancouver saw many friends made during their motel days at the Adobe Oaks.

Irene Baldwin and Marjorie Ibsen have purchased the Laing home on Flight Road formerly occupied by the Bob Kvenild family. The ladies are currently in the process of moving from Robles del Rio. Irene went to Yuma, Arizona last week to pick up her twingranddaughters, Jody and Tony Lucas who will be Valley guests until school begins. In addition to having fun visiting their many friends, the girls are a tremendous help getting their aunt and grandmother settled in new quarters.

Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Dickie of Laurel Drive recently spent a month in Alaska, much of which was a personally guided tour by their daughter and son-in-law, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Theron Wardle. The Valleyites drove to Vancouver where they transferred to a boat which took them to Skagway. Boarding a train, they made their way over the Yukon trail to Lake Bennett and then returned to Keynes. A three day bus trip ended in Anchorage where they joined their family. Col. Wardle had taken his leave and among the trips planned for the Californians were visits to Valdez, Seward, Kanai, Portage, Glacier, and a five day stay at the Army recreation camp at Lake Louise. The good news on Laurel Drive last week was the release from Community Hospital of Mr. Dickie who has been a patient there for a month. Upon returning from the North, he suffered a heart attack and has undergone treatment ever since. A nice surprise, sure to hasten his recovery, awaited him planned by the Dickie's daughter, Mrs. Keith Lund, and son Danny, who came from their home in Lakewood to have the yard and house in "apple pie order" for his return home.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Sted Wood who built their home on West Garzas Road twelve years ago have sold their property and moved to the Ravine Apartments on Sage-Ford Road. The Wood family who did a good deal of traveling last year, found it so enjoyable that they decided to relinquish the responsibilities of maintaining their park-like grounds and do more touring in the near future. Jacqueline and Paul Elliott have purchased the Wood home and Mrs. Elliott will remain there with their son while her husband serves in Viet Nam.

On hand to share the excitement of the twice-a-year arrival of a food barge were Mr. and Mrs. Jack Barnhart of Rancho Road, who were guests of their daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Loranger at Teller, Alaska. With two sons and a daughter, the Lorangers make their home at the Eskimo Village with water on three sides, accessible only by bush pilot or boat, where Bob teaches 4th and 5th grade Eskimo children. Their daughter is active in organizing the Neighborhood Youth Corps, Vista, and a better housing program, and has made a tremendous contribution for the betterment of Teller's population. Donna and Jack who first thought they would be stranded in Anchorage by the plane strike, were lucky enough to get a Sunday flight south and returned to the Valley without the problems many travelers are encountering.

The Boardwalk at Santa Cruz was the destination of Lori

Smith and guests invited to share the celebration of her twelfth birthday. Lori's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Smith and Mr. and Mrs. John Senger accompanied the girls on their outing, which included a picnic at New Brighton Beach State Park. Enjoying the day and what for many of them was a first time thrilling ride on a roller coaster were Maria Baskerville, Sara Gay Senger, Vicki Bennett, and Jenny Thornburg.

The Villa Dela Vina Apartments on Villa Dela Vina Street in Monterey, is the new address for Mr. and Mrs. Roy Brewer, who made their home for twelve years in Carmel Valley. Ten of those years were spent in the attractive home on West Garzas Road which has been purchased by Mr. and Mrs. John Estes. Mr. and Mrs. Estes, natives of San Francisco, made their home for a year in Carmel where she taught at River School. Mr. Estes is a representative for a manufacturer. Much happiness to the Brewers in their new location. The wit and wisdom that flowed from Roy's pen into cartoons pertaining to current Valley events will be missed.

The ice breaking up at Kotzebue was the rare sight Valleyites Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wenneberg of Lupine Lane were privileged to witness on their recent trip to Alaska. Visits which included Nome, Fairbanks, and McKinley Park were made via all modes of transportation utilized in the far north, including auto on the Alcan Highway, plane and train.

Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Dufur received a surprise visit last week from Lee's aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. John Dufur, who arrived from their home in Blanding, Utah, with their children, Rita, Etta, Cynthia, Lorraine, Danny and Ronnie. Dick Gayman and Lloyd Todd who have spent some en-

Cypress swimmers make good showing at AAU Championships

The Pacific Association dominated the National AAU Synchronized Swimming Championships held at Rancho Cordova Community Center near Sacramento, last weekend.

The Cypress Swim Club took 18th place in the national team competition with its entry, "Cotillion Waltz," swum by Margaret Demarest, Judy Snyder, Jan and Sharon Roehl. The local team's second entry, "Toy Soldiers on Parade," placed 25th, as swum by Bonnie Banker, Lindy Doud, Marnie Mark, Sheila McClain, Jo Anne Padjen and Susie Slefridge.

In duet competition, the Cypress Swim Club entries placed as follows: Jan and Sharon Roehl, 25th; Lindy Doud and Jo Anne Padjen, 29th; Marnie Mark and Susie Slefridge, 35th; and Margaret Demarest and Judy Snyder 39th.

With the largest entry in synchronized swimming history, the national championships took on an international flavor with champions from Japan and Canada entered in competition with the American teams for the first time in this country. The Japanese team, from the Hamadera Swimming School in Osaka, Japan, took eighth place, and the Canadian team, from the Peterborough Swim Club in Peterborough, Ontario, placed fifteenth.

But it was the Pacific AAU's show all the way. Led by Margo McGrath and Carol Redmond of the San Francisco Merionettes, who took first and second places in solo, first in duet, and first in team competition, all finalists were from the Pacific Association, with the exception of one solo, a duet and two teams from the Riverside Aquettes, of Riverside, California, and one team from San Antonio, Texas.

Next competition on a national level for the local Cypress Swim Club will be at the 1967 Senior National AAU Indoors Championships at Cypress Gardens, Florida, around Easter next year.

Roberts extends Peace Corps tour in Peru

Warren Roberts, son of the Don Roberts of Carmel Valley, has extended his stay with the Peace Corps for six months in order to work with the park department in Lima, Peru. Warren has been holding classes for park employees, teaching them the care of trees and shrubs, spraying, pruning, etc.

His first exposure to tree trimming practices in Lima occurred when he came down from the mountains and saw huge trees virtually cut off to trunks in an attempt at pruning.

He asked for an extension of his contract and has been in Lima ever since.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following editorial appeared in La Prensa, Lima's daily paper. After Roberts had initiated new pruning techniques. We thought it would be of interest in our own area which is so tree conscious...Carmel, where it is a sin to cut a tree...and the Monterey - Carmel Highway, where it seems to be a sin to leave one.)

"When the public saw that some workers were climbing the trees armed with modern chain saws, they had the right, without a doubt, to suppose that another attack of official fury, that seems to be characteristic of Lima, was being started.

"Operation pruning," according to information, has been initiated under the supervision of technicians trained by an American specialist, Warren Roberts. They don't treat the trees, then, like they did at other times - 'pruning' as if they were cutting firewood-.

"It is about time that we started along this road. The national dignity and nationalism won't be wounded by the circumstance that foreign technicians come with ample experience to teach us how to do things.

ease and polish, yet with spontaneity and humor. John Morgan, as the merry jester Costard, fulfilled his role satisfactorily, with the necessary subtle wit. Roderick Sibley, playing the pompous Spaniard Don Adriano, was delightfully funny, doing justice to his role with his comical bearing while delivering his whimsical lines.

The various other roles of the lords and ladies were played with sufficient adeptness, notable among which were Susan Mason as Rosaline and Judy Hammer as Katherine. Playing Boyet, the Princess' aide, John Hancock was dignified, yet humorous.

Characters of Sir Nathaniel and Holofernes were portrayed skillfully by Farhad Saba and Richard Harmel, respectively.

Kevin Stock, as Marcade, Richard Engle as Dull, Buz Bricca as Moth, and Bill Rosenoff as a Forester, made up the rest of the roles in the cast. Since the skillful portrayal of every character is essential for a well-unified production, one may express disappointment at frequently hearing dialogue mumbled and blurted out as if from memory, unintelligible to the understanding of the audience.

Cleverly designed sets, which adapted themselves to quick change, were most effective. Costumes were authentic, for the most part, in appearance, ranging from the artfully designed outfits of the gentlemen to the colorful gowns of the ladies. Despite minor rough spots, this production is well worthy of praise.

Carmel Valley becomes mecca for youth hostels

There has been a continual stream of young people on bicycles pedaling up and down the Valley Road this summer. Neatly tied packs are attached to their bikes and they all look very healthy and tanned.

Many members of the American Youth Hostel group have taken to the roads, seeing America by bicycle. One of their local stopping-over places is Saddle Mountain Ranch, where they are welcomed by Marie and Milt Frumkin.

The group which recently stayed in the Valley was the largest, 18 young people and their two leaders, Al Eli and Susan Ginsburg. They have been combining cycling with train transportation to cover the United States during their summer vacation.

The group left New York City on July 2, went to Niagara Falls, Detroit and then Chicago. Arriving in Montana, they took in Yellowstone Park, the Grand Tetons and cycled through Wyoming and Idaho. Their next "city stop" was at Salt Lake, then on to Sacramento. They enjoyed cycling through Yosemite, saw San Francisco, and then took the train from San Francisco to Salinas, where they got on their bikes again and pedaled to Carmel Valley.

We met them on their way out of the Valley heading to Point Lobos and then on down the coast to San Simeon and Morro Bay.

The young people in this group, who were about 17 or 18 years old, then will take a train to Los Angeles from San Luis Obispo. Before returning to the East Coast, they will cycle through Zion National Park, Grand Canyon, and Bryce Canyon.

Although Youth Hostel groups have been a common sight in Europe for many years, they have just recently come into their own in the States. There are two organizations at the present time, both located in the same building in New York City. One is the American Youth Hostel Metropolitan Council, and the other is the American Youth Hostel.

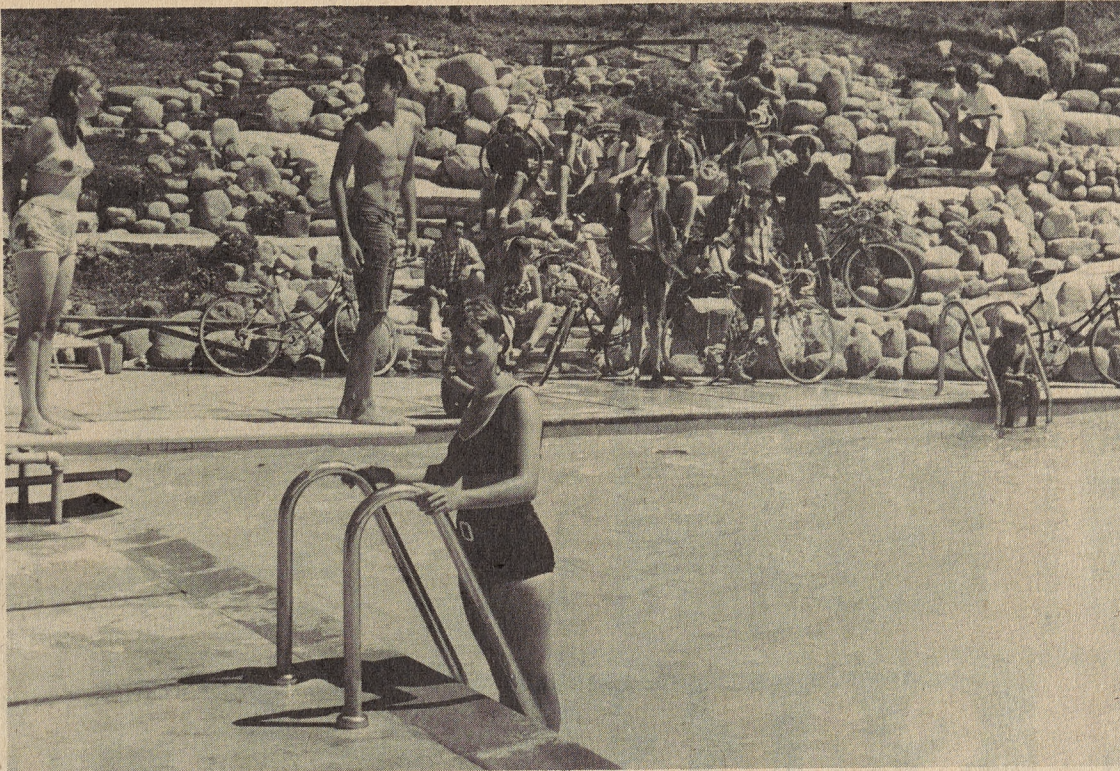

The group we pictured above had cycled a lot through the East, but many were seeing the West for the first time. They said it was a wonderful way to see the country and learn about it.

As soon as they left Saddle Mountain Ranch, a small group of girls cycled in as the next AYH contingent arrived.

Chamber Board slates luncheon meeting Aug. 10

Carmel Valley Chamber of Commerce will have its regular Board of Directors meeting on Wednesday, August 10, at Los Laureles Lodge. Lunch is at 12 noon, and the gathering is open to all members who wish to attend.

The baby sitting registry which the Chamber has compiled has proven to be successful. Lori Swiess, secretary, would like to have the names of older women who would be willing to sit, particularly for weekends and during the day. Anyone wishing to be put on the list may contact Lori at her shop, "Sugar 'n Spice."

A GROUP of American Youth Hostel cyclists relaxed at Saddle Mountain Ranch last week before taking off for the next leg of their journey, down Highway 1 to Big Sur, San Simeon and Morro Bay.

Certificates awarded to EDINN project students

A four-week summer class in the humanities for high school students, sponsored as an educational innovation by Project EDINN, was concluded last July 22 with the awarding of certificates at Monterey High School. Two Carmel Valley residents, Timothy Berta, Carmel Valley Road, and Juan Moore, Lower Circle, took part in the demonstration in learning which had the enthusiastic participation of 65 students and six teachers from Monterey County. The program demonstrated a team approach to teaching humanities subject matter with the hope that local high schools will develop similar courses for their students.

Students and teachers explored the inter-relation of art, music, drama, ballet, history, literature, and philosophy, concentrating on the Baroque Period from 1660-1750, during the four weeks. The students attended the Carmel Bach Festival in the last week of the course, after which they selected three classmates to receive season tickets to next year's Festival. Extensive use of community resources, including both facilities (art galleries, artists' studios, little theaters, and even beaches), and talented residents and visiting artists who came to talk with the students and explain their work, was a key part of the course. Tape recordings and films also were used to a considerable extent, but the emphasis was on discussion and involvement and "dialogue" among students, teachers, and guest lecturers, and participation in art, music, and drama.

After visiting and participating in the class for four days, Dr. Charles Keller of New York, distinguished educator and former director of the John Hay Fellows program to encourage teaching of the humanities, praised the program's "un-academic freedom" and its emphasis on creativity and "dialogue." There were no tests or grades in the course, but great freedom to question, explore, experiment and learn. A similar course, for students from Santa Cruz and San Benito Counties, opened August 1 at Cabrillo College at Aptos. That course will stress the period of the 20th century and its "Spirit of Revolt." As a pilot program under the federal act for educational innovation, the course is free to the students and involves no expense to local school districts.

The daily class routine varied widely from large-group discussion and lecture periods, small-group meetings, and one hour in each of the four-hour class days for an "option period" when students could select any one of several subject groups. As one teacher commented, "We were constantly shifting. We moved students around the room, we moved classes around the campus, sometimes we went for walks, we varied the class size. Nobody was bored..." Teachers who developed and taught the course were Lewis (Ig) Heniford of North Salinas High, the leader; Peter Lyon of Carmel High; and the two associates, Eleanor Kerr of Junipero High and Charles Swenson of Salinas High.

Among the community resource people who participated were: Jim Smith, Carmel Valley owner of the Thunderbird Shops; Rev. Walter Grumm, Lutheran minister, Brian Gagan, Catholic lay leader, and Dr. Ronald Menmuir, MPC philosophy instructor, as a panel on religion; Fred Rider and Marcia Hovick, lecturing and demonstrating on phases of drama; Eric Barker, poet; Francis Heisler, attorney; Ira Sandperl, teacher-philosopher; Horace Lyon, photographer.

Performers from out of town included classical guitarist Rand Canger of Palo Alto; and Angene Feves and members of the Oakland Ballet Company.

joyable hunting trips in the Blanding area helped to entertain the visitors from Utah. Eileen and Lee whose Hitchcock Canyon home was destroyed recently by fire are in temporary quarters at the Village Manor Apartments until their new home on Chapparal is completed.

"Come as you are" was the invitation extended by Diane Klech when she invited a group of friends to her East Garzas Road home for a barbecue and slumber party. Celebrating with Diane who was twelve, were, Jennifer Kirksey, Linda Klemek, Sandy Swiess, Vicki Bennett, Lori Smith, and Jenny Thornburg. Diane's birthday coincides with the anniversary of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Klech who were this year observing their seventeenth with a three day celebration at Clear Lake and Santa Rosa. Jean returned last weekend from a buying trip down south with exciting new merchandise for her shop, The Pampered Hamper.

Individual birthday cupcakes and ice cream cups were served to the guests attending the joint celebration of two little sisters with birth dates one year apart. Kathy Collins who was five on the 3rd of July and Tricia who was four on the 17th, were hostesses at a patio party which was decorated with red and white streamers and balloons. Assisting their mother, Mrs. Alexander Collins, was their sister, Dorothy, and their cousins, Julie and Elaine Bennett. The threesome wore attractive granny dresses. Honored guest of the celebrants was their grandmother, Mrs. S.N. Trevino.

Others invited were Christine and Roalie Belleci, Colleen Feeney, Laurie and Susie Bennett, Leeta Olsen, Laura and Denise Sherman, and their sister, Sharon. Also attending were Christine and Andrea Mortenson. The children were visiting the Valley with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Mortenson, former Valleyites who now make their home in Santa Cruz.

The Valley Bridge Club met Tuesday night at the Community Center for an evening of Duplicate Bridge. Mrs. M.A. Antonicich and Mrs. M.L. Stoney won first place honors, Mrs. Caroleah Hamilton and Mrs. Jean Adair won second place, and Mr. and Mrs. E.W. Gravelle were awarded third place.

Janet and Bill Diehm who were stationed here four years ago and made their home on Marquard Road received a warm welcome from many old friends when they arrived in the Valley last week for a second two-year assignment for Bill at the Naval Postgraduate School. Janet and children, Nancy and Billy, made their home in Virginia while Bill served in the Mediterranean. The Diehm family are getting settled in the former Bernard Jones home, 66 Sage Road.

Boyd Danielson, assistant chief of the Carmel Valley Volunteer Fire Department, was honored by firemen and their wives with a surprise birthday party last Saturday night at the Fire House. Mrs. Don Laird was in charge of the dinner, with a birthday cake and all the trimmings. The Department presented Boyd, an ardent fisherman, with a handsome fly rod and reel with the stipulation that the next dinner, a "fish-fry" would be furnished by the guest of honor!

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Black of Panetta Road enjoyed a recent visit from Rae's sister, Mrs. Glen Seal of Springville, Utah. Accompanying Mrs. Seal were her children, Julae, Gay and Robert.

David A. Edwards to work on AFSC sponsored social service program

Sponsored by the American Friends Service Committee, David A. Edwards, of Carmel Valley, will participate this summer in a community service project, working under the direction of social service agencies or other organizations engaged in education, community development, or housing programs. Along with several small groups of volunteers from varied backgrounds, David will share the everyday life of neighbors and assist local leadership in the development of local projects. Work may include tutoring, recreational leadership, cultural enrichment programs for children, and citizenship education.

A Quaker service organization, the American Friends Service Committee has sponsored summer service projects for young people in the U.S. and abroad for more than thirty years. AFSC conducts peace caravans, programs in civil rights, and in institutions for the mentally ill and retarded, as well as the more traditional work camps.

Comings and goings of people you know...

By GINNIE DREW

Alice and Irwin Johnson capitalized on the unexpected rainfall and liberally sprinkled their entrance walkways and gardens with amusing signs to greet party guests. Although the rain had dampened their hopes of having a garden party, fate smiled on them (and so did the sun) and their many guests were able to enjoy an indoor-outdoor affair.

A strolling accordion player provided gala music which prompted dancing among numerous guests. Among those who enjoyed the delicious libations and edibles were Mmes. and Msrs. Ed Miller, Frank Porter, Skip Marquard, Irving Ollason, W.G.B. Hatch, Jack Rauber, Myron Joss, Bruce McClain, John Woolfenden, Arthur Dresser, Mrs. Terry Jones, Inga-Britt Ringrose and Ed Haber. A host of others gathered for much conversation and frivolity.

July was a busy birthday month for Mrs. Milton Klikovac, her mother and son. Son, Steven, celebrated his third birthday with cake and presents from the family. The following evening Mrs. Klikovac (Audrey) was surprised with a cake which her husband, and children, Scott, Sandra and Steven had baked for her.

The three birthdays fall on three consecutive days so it is a natural for a round of festivities. Steven's guests at his party were Doug, Kevin and Dean Lake, Michael and David Cloud, Stephanie Joyet, Kelly and J.F. Blatnik, Chris and Rodney Anderson and his sister, Sandra and brother, Scott.

Louise Warner from Jamesburg has entered two horses in competition at the National Horse at the Monterey County Fair. One, a bay mare named "King Cobra," will be ridden by her daughter, Caroline Fisher.

Susie Lang will ride her brown mare "Smokey" in the Stock Seat Class.

Plan Com approves hotel design

The County Planning Commission unanimously approved the design for the hotel which will be a major part of the shopping center development in the Lower Valley off Highway One.

The design of the facility which is to be one of the Holiday Inn chain was challenged by the Lower Valley Advisory Board as being different from the original one and incompatible with the surrounding area. They recommended rejection of the design.

Appearing before PlanCom was Donald Goodhue, who is the planner for the W.L. Hudson shopping center. He insisted the submitted plans were the same as those originally submitted to the Lower Valley Advisory Board, which were approved.

Apparently this convinced the commissioners who moved to approve the design.

In other PlanCom business, the request by Cal-Neva Corporation to develop 50 condominium units on the Rancho del Monte Resort property was continued.

The removal of natural materials from the river near the Carmel Valley Golf and Country Club was approved for three years. Phil Calabrese requested the permit.

Sabl Sillies show closes summer school

ABOVE—Student teachers assisting at the summer school session at All Saint's School planned the Sabl Sillies, presented at the close of classes last week. School director Nancy Bottero was as surprised as the rest of the audience as she watched her staff and students perform. Slapstick was the order of the day with the girls, (left to right) Terrie Read, Annie Torres, Pam Martin, Jinks Snow and Colleen Cog-gin plastering Bob De La Paz with shaving cream.

BELOW—Exercises to the record, "Chicken Fat," were a regular morning ritual during summer school. The youngsters opened their Sabl Sillies Show with a demonstration.
